(Alexandria, VA) Revolutionary hip-hop artist Justin Artis will release “Can’t Do Without Love (CDWL),” the second single from his upcoming album Love In Darkness I, on March 26th. The full-length project will be his ninth album to date and is expected to connect with audiences in a way that only a seasoned creative like Justin can accomplish. The DMV-based artist masterfully fuses gospel, acoustic and electric guitars, and spoken word to own his own lane in hip-hop music that he refers to as “Hip-Hop Renaissance.”

On the vulnerable track, Justin details the oscillation that he has experienced in relationships between not being ready to commit and realizing that he cannot go without love. On the inspiration behind the track, Justin said, “Love is in levels much like life, success, and other areas of our lives. CDWL expresses my perspective of when a woman has a good man how her immaturity, lack of self-love, and drama leads to heartbreak. This makes men not want to love or lead as they should in fear of these traits but we can’t run from love. We all need it.”

Justin’s latest project was as an engineer and feature on Demione Louis’ Found Me EP, which has reached certified gold status with 500k+ streams on Spotify. This immense achievement was reached within only two months of its September 25, 2020 release. Be sure to keep up with Justin to check out Love In Darkness I, which is set to release April 30th.
